

St Helier is Safe now help to build a new local hospital

by Paul Scully | Sep 1, 2017 | News, News | 0 comments

On Tuesday 7th September I have a public meeting in Sutton to discuss the future of local healthcare including both ensuring St Helier has a long future and the possibility of building a new specialist acute healthcare facility in Sutton.

Joining me will be Daniel Elkeles, Chief Executive of Epsom and St Helier University Hospitals NHS Trust who will outline the Trust's vision for the coming years. We need you to get behind this. You can find out more information here.

Come along to the meeting, look at the video on the Trust's website, Fill in one of our surveys. Please get involved and rather than just talk about saving St Helier, let's do something together, speaking with one voice and go further.

To register for my public meeting, click here.

